Rachel Feder Glaser is an attorney with Kopelowitz Ostrow P.A. in the Fort Lauderdale office and is an active member of the Florida Bar. Her practice focuses primarily on class action litigation. Ms. Glaser has assisted in litigating consumer class action lawsuits against some of the largest financial institutions in the state of Florida and in the nation, with regard to the unlawful assessment and collection of bank fees. She has also assisted the firm in class actions targeting auto insurance companies across the country, in connection with the failure to provide proper coverage in the event of a total vehicular loss.

Ms. Glaser earned her Juris Doctor, summa cum laude, from Nova Southeastern University, Shepard Broad College of Law, where she served as an Executive Board Member of the Nova Trial Association, Senior Associate for the Nova Law Review, and as a teaching assistant for the Legal Research and Writing Department. Ms. Glaser was consistently placed on the Dean's List and received the Book Award in Legal research and Writing, Evidence and Trial Advocacy.

While in law school, Ms. Glaser participated in national competitions for both the Nova Trial Association and the Moot Court Honor Society, winning a National Championship at the 2019 Buffalo-Niagara Mock Trial Competition. For her excellence in advocacy, Ms. Glaser was inducted into the Order of the Barristers.

Ms. Glaser received a Bachelor of Science in both Accounting and Finance from Florida State University. While attending Florida State, she interned for the University's Office of Inspector General Services where she assisted internal auditors in investigating allegations related to compliance, fraud, and abuse of university resources.
